Art Unit: 1616

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7, 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Metz et al (AJH 1:58-60 1988).

Metz et al teach a reduction in body fat content in rats consuming higher diets of calcium (abstract). A 2% calcium diet for 11 weeks is disclosed (abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to formulate a high calcium diet for an animal to achieve the beneficial effect of a reduction in body fat content in view of the Metz et al results.

As to the claimed reduced risk of diabetes, it is well known, even to the layman, that obesity increases the risk of diabetes, and, therefore, a method of reducing weight will reduce that risk. One of ordinary skill would further recognize that mammals in general are subject to this risk.

As to the claimed dairy product, one of ordinary skill, even the layman, recognizes that milk is a source of dietary calcium. Thus, it would be an obvious expedient to formulate milk as the vehicle for a high calcium diet. As to the claimed caloric restriction, such would be an obvious expedient to incur a further decrease in body weight (abstract).

Applicants argue that Metz et al requires sodium. However, applicants do not exclude sodium. Applicants argue unexpected results in view of the universal recognition of dairy's role as food for young mammals to gain weight. However, applicants claim a restricted diet. In the context of a restricted diet, laymen recognize the effectiveness of skim milk, also a dairy product, for reducing weight gain.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 8-10, 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schroeder et al.

Schroeder et al teach a solid animal feed supplement containing calcium. It is poured into packages (abstract). Containers are specified (column 2 line 15). The proper proportion of fat to limit free choice feeding and over-consumption is disclosed (column 6 lines 54-57). Ruminants are specified (column 1 lines 50-54). 0.5-5% calcium is disclosed (claim 1). As to the claimed pet food, such is merely an intended use. As to the claimed accompanying plan and description, such also constitute an intended use. An intended use is not considered a patentable limitation during prosecution of composition claims before the USPTO.

Applicants argue that Schroeder et al teach away from the claimed invention because the reference teaches molasses and/or fat for weight gain, whereas applicants' plan and description concern restricting caloric intake. However, applicants' plan and description are merely an intended use. Applicants do not exclude ingredients such as molasses in their claims.

No claims allowed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
